ATC & USK Agree To Strategic Cooperation

Automation Tool Company, ATC of Cookeville, TN and USK Special Machines GmbH of Limbach-Oberfrohna/Saxony, Germany is pleased to announce a strategic cooperation agreement. With this cooperation both companies will be best positioned to serve the global market.

Last week the officers of the respective companies came to an agreement for special focus and co-operation within the automotive, photovoltaic and medical device assembly markets. Each organization possesses competencies and experiences and is recognized as a leader in their respective automation and test markets. This knowledge will be brought forward into work-sharing and technology transfer projects to make a difference for our customers. In addition there has been increasing value for bundling larger production capacities as well as offering expanded service. Moreover larger and more technically demanding projects can be manufactured in co-operation or bundled to offer improved concepts, value, and price.

Our internationally active customers expect a Global footprint with service and support worldwide. Through this cooperation, we can guarantee improved performance and reliability for all our customers today and into the future.
